

ROSS L. KODNER

Ross Kodner, attorney, graduated from Marquette University Law School in Milwaukee, Wisconsin in 1986, where he was a member of the Law Review.

He founded Wisconsin's MicroLaw, Inc. (www.microlaw.com) in 1985, an international legal technology consulting firm and legal-exclusive training company, having served over 800 law firms and legal departments across the U.S., Canada and the Caribbean.

Ross is a frequent speaker and author internationally on a broad range of legal technology topics, having conducted over 1300 CLE sessions since the mid-1980's and he has authored over 500 articles on legal technology and practice management topics for publications.

In 1999 he was honored as the "Technolawyer Consultant of the Year" - a lifetime achievement award by the Technolawyer Online Community and was also honored in 2001 and 2002 as the "Technolawyer Contributor of the Year."

He served an unprecedented four years in the ABA as Chair of the ABA Law Practice Management Section's Computer & Technology Division, he was also a member of the ABA TECHSHOW Executive Board for five years, has been the Planning Co-Chair for U.S. LegalTech events since 1999, serves on the planning board for Glasser LegalWorks, is Chair of the Midwest Law & Technology Conference, co-chairs the new Minnesota Solo & Small Firm Conference and is the founder of the Annual Legal Consultants and Technologists Dinner.

He has been asked to advise many well-known legal product companies including Thomson-West, Gateway Computers, Apple Computer, Adobe Systems, Hewlett-Packard, Visioneer, Corel/WordPerfect, Software Technology, Inc., among others.

His personal mottos are "Friends don't let friends word process without Reveal Codes" and "If you think hiring an expert is expensive, try hiring an amateur."

Ross can be reached at rkodner@microlaw.com, via www.microlaw.com and at 414-540-9433.